Jewish DP's Find Haven in Israel

By agreement between Israel and the International Refugee Organization (IRO) of the United Nations, some 3000 displaced persons (1600 institutional cases plus 1400 dependents) will now find new homes in Israel. Here a Jewish refugee of German origin, suffering from heart disease, is escorted up the gangplank of an Israeli ship docked at Naples by a Palestinian nurse and sailor. IRO will pay $2,500,000 to Israel to help finance five institutions for aged refugees.

Ramsey Nash, Carbon Old Timer, Buried Tuesday

Funeral services for Charles Ramsey Nash, 74, an old timer of the Swalwell and Carbon districts who passed away in Drumheller hospital Friday, June 16, were held from Christ Church, Carbon, Tuesday, June 20. Rev. J. W. Way officiated at the ceremony and Winter Bros. funeral home was in charge of arrangements. Interment was made in the Carbon cemetery.

Pallbearers were Royal Hay, Eli Spry, Bert Charlebois, Fred Bessant, Jim Flaws, Bill Douglas.

Born in England, Mr. Nash moved to Manitoba in 1896 and to Carbon 12 years later. He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Mabel White of Calgary; a son, Charles of Calgary; a sister in England, and a brother, Charles, in Carbon.

Plans were laid for the annual picnic at the June meeting of the Canadian Legion in the Legion hall Monday evening. The picnic will be held in the Carbon park on July 19. Committees were appointed to look after the day's program.

A review of the financial statement showed a substantial balance on hand. It was reported to the meeting that the executive committee had recently purchased the hall from the Drumheller School Division. The sec-treas., Jack Barr, was authorized to purchase light fixtures for the hall.

Prior to adjournment the former secretary, Charlie Cave, was presented with a past officer's medal.

Room III students of Carbon school, accompanied by Mrs. R. Sherring, visited Calgary on an industrial tour June 16. They toured the soft drink section of the brewery, the 4X bakery, the Herald building and radio station CKXL. A picnic lunch was served at St. George's Island and the pupils enjoyed seeing all the wild animals. The late afternoon and evening were spent at Bowness, the main attraction being miniature golf.

Everyone enjoyed the outing. Thanks is extended to Mrs. Ed Foster, Mr. John Harsch, Mr. Doug Prowse and Mr. Dick Sherring for transportation, and also to the parents who supplied such an enjoyable lunch.—Contributed

The Hesketh ball team defeated Ghost Pine 7-5 in a game played at Hesketh on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Barr and son, Dennis, were weekend visitors at Red Deer, where Mr. Barr competed in the annual Bank of Montreal golf tournament on Sunday. Bill Sutherland of the local B of M staff also took part in the competition.

Fire Friday destroyed the 1947 Pontiac owned by Bill Ross on the road four miles east of Swalwell. Mrs. Ross was driving the car en route to school teaching duties at Swalwell when fire broke out in the right rear wheel. The interior of the car was completely burnt out before the fire was extinguished. Considerable damage was done to the motor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Drumheller were visitors last Wednesday at the Graham home.

The Carbon baseball team won first money at the Swalwell sports last Wednesday. They defeated Acme 11-4 in the first game and Swalwell 18-5 in the final. In a league game at Carbon on Sunday the local team again won 14-9.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Oliphant and son of Mercoal are visiting in Carbon at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williamson.

Canadians As Investors

MOST CANADIANS ARE AWARE that a considerable amount of foreign capital is invested in industry and in developing the natural resources of this country. There has been some dissatisfaction over this situation, for the profits from any enterprise go to the investor, and in cases where foreign capital has been used, the profits go out of the country. Canada is a young nation with a relatively small population and has needed the help of the money invested from sources outside of the country to develop industries and resources. However, financial experts agree that Canadians could now, if they so wished, invest much more of their own money in new enterprises within the country.

Could Meet Own Needs

Mr. J. E. Coyne, deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, recently told a meeting of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association that Canadians have saved more than $3,000,000,000 in the past four years and that they are increasing their savings by $400,000,000 a year. These savings, added to surpluses which are accumulating in corporation accounts would be enough to meet Canadian investment requirements, Mr. Coyne said, but much foreign capital is still being invested here. The reason for this continued need for foreign investments lies in the fact that Canadians as a whole appear to be unwilling to risk their money on new enterprises. They prefer to put their savings into the more conservative channels, such as housing mortgages, and while these investments are necessary and helpful they are not, in Mr. Coyne's opinion, enough at this time.

Show Faith In The Future

Investments in new business enterprises and in the development of our mines, forests, oil fields and other natural resources are investments in the future of the country, and are made by people who have faith in its future. That a large proportion of such investments come from outside of Canada should cause us to give some thought to the situation. One half of all the dividends of Canadian corporations are now paid to non-resident investors, and as long as foreign capital is required to support part of our economy, these figures will be high. "Experience of the last few years shows," Mr. Coyne said, "that someone is going to develop the resources of this country, if not Canadians, then Americans, Britons and Europeans." Canadians will have to decide whether they are willing to assume the risk of investing in new ventures, or whether they wish to continue to leave a large part of that field to people in other countries.

Homes Must Be O.K.'d

With hundreds of persons clamoring to be allowed back into their flooded homes, authorities in Winnipeg have posted cards on dwellings signifying if they are suitable for occupancy or not. June Arbogast holds two cards, one green to be posted on houses o.k.'d by the provincial health authorities, the other red.—Central Press Canadian.

A Nice Gesture

"That Winnipeg Flood disaster has touched the hearts of everybody."

The unbelievable destruction of private homes and the filth and slime left behind spells danger to health from infection.

We were glad to hear that Jeyes' Canada Ltd. of Toronto donated 225 gallons of their disinfectant to Winnipeg Health Authorities and this amount will make more than 288,000 gallons of effective disinfectant.

In addition they sent 16,000 bottles of Jeyes' Fluid to St. Agathe; Morris and St. Jean Baptiste to assist in local clean-up operations.

This is practical philanthropy and is an example to all who have products that can be used.

That the shipment was made just when clean-up was started is doubly important.

Alberta Reduces Provincial Debt

EDMONTON.—June 2nd was pay day for Alberta's bondholders in Canada and Great Britain.

From coffers swelled with oil funds, the Alberta Government paid off $14,486,000 in Canadian debentures and $4,091,000 in sterling stock. Another $1,182,000 issue in United States pay debentures, held by the provincial government itself, also was retired.

Altogether, the redemption of bonds completed cut $19,759,000 from Alberta's provincial debt.

Meanwhile at New York, refunding of $59,885,000 of United States pay bonds carrying 3½ per cent. interest was completed. The new bond issue, which covers the indebtedness, carries interest rates of less than three per cent.

As a result of the debt-reorganization and payment of Canadian and British-held bonds, Alberta will save $22,000,000. Total funded and guaranteed debt of the province is $101,227,000. In 1936 it was $148,613,000.

Unesco To Study "Food and People" In General Conference at Florence

By H. D. CRAWFORD
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—Public discussion of mutual problems is an American custom as old as the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization at its fifth general meeting in Florence, Italy, is presenting some sobering facts on "Food and People".

One is that famine and starvation still ride over the earth, causing half of the world's 2.3 billion people to suffer from hunger and undernourishment. Another is that this world population is growing more rapidly than food production is expanding. Still another is that world peace and security depend in large measure upon the ability of nations to provide enough food for their people.

"Never was there a time in history when so much seemed to hinge on the world's ability to feed, clothe and house its people," asserted M. L. Wilson, director of extension work in the United States Department of Agriculture, when the National commission launched its "Food and People" program.

"We are almost in general agreement that the future of our democratic way of life is closely related to our ability to raise the standards of living in many nations."

UNESCO's "Food and People" discussion program is one of six projects for community action to which the United States National commission has given priority. You can appreciate the value and importance of the other five:

Education About the United Nations: Since its formation, the National commission has strived to encourage the teaching of international understanding in schools and colleges, and the holding of student conferences, institutes and workshops on United Nations problems.

Human Rights: A continuing project is the distribution of information about the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the encouragement of community projects to achieve its purposes.

Exchange of Persons: Co-operating with the state department's office of educational exchange, the National commission has helped develop such co-operative educational aids throughout the world as fellowship, scholarships and grants-in-aid.

—Central Press Canadian.

Primitive agriculture, symbolized by this Chinese farmer, must give way to modern methods if world's peoples are to have enough food.

Educational Reconstruction: War-devastated countries in 1949 received $24,000,000 in money, services and materials contributed by United Nations organizations. During the preceding three years, this amount was $214,000,000.

Improvement of Teaching Materials: All of UNESCO's 63 member nations have been asked to re-examine their teaching materials, to include more information on mutual problems and to correct statements that breed antagonisms and create tensions based on bias.

The "Food and People" program, however, is particularly significant now as every Canadian community enters a new season of planting seeds, cultivating plants, and producing another year's supply of that vital stuff called food.

Since earliest pioneers penetrated the forests, rivers and prairies of North America, food has been a major consideration for survival. Our own growing population increases the problem of supplying food for our own needs, but our new international responsibilities now reach to every individual farmer, gardener and food manufacturer.

When you realize that the world's population is growing about 2,000,000 a month, 475,000 a week, or approximately 60,000 a day, you can better understand the significance of F.A.O.'s predictions that by 1960 world food needs will require 100 per cent. more fruits and vegetables, 80 per cent. more pease and beans, 34 per cent. more fats, 27 per cent. more cereals and 12 per cent. more sugar.

Food is a vital necessity for survival, for health and for peace. Problems of its production, distribution and consumption deserve the thought and action of the people in every community.

"Food", after all, means your food and "people" includes you, and this baffling problem of enough food for all people will depend to some extent on your ideas and your action.

New Zealand Uncovers Prehistoric Frog

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—A frog believed a living example of the grand daddy of all frogs is hopping around an island in the New Zealand archipelago.

The supposed Liopelma Jamiltoni, common ancestor of all frog types, was discovered on St. Stephen's Island by W. H. Dawb, Zoology lecturer at Victoria University.

The frog has four toes on each of its front feet, five toes on the hind feet and no trace of webbing. It probably develops from an egg instead of going through tadpole stage.

Scottish Tartans Popular In U.S.

LONDON.—Scottish tartans are fast becoming one of Britain's brightest dollar earners. Parliamentary statements show that 600 miles of British-made tartan cloth was exported to the United States in the last three years. ## TRY AND STOP ME!

By BENNETT CERF

Whitney Darrow Jr., the famous cartoonist, met his bride in the editorial sanctum of a magazine. She was running an entertainment department when young Darrow spied her and demanded of some underling (the boss possibly), "What's the name of that attractive girl?" "Middy", was the answer. "How's that?" said Whitney. "Middy", repeated his informer, "as in blouse." So for three weeks Whitney wooed her in the belief that her name was Middy Asinblouse.

UP FOR GRADUATION AGAIN

Canada's Adverse Balance With United States Is Narrowing

If U.S. Prosperity Continues A Good Year Is Expected

OTTAWA.—Canada's adverse balance with United States has narrowed from almost a billion dollars three years ago to something close to $300,000,000, it was learned from high government sources. They believe that this gap will be closed by the end of the year, if present trade indications are maintained.

Put in figures, Canada used to spend $2 in United States for every $1 the U.S. spent in proportion. Today, the figure in proportion would be more like $2 spent by Canada in U.S.A. to $1.80 spent by the Americans here. That would cut proportions down from 2 to 1 to 5 to 4.

It was also indicated that the wide gap between Canadian spending in Canada had narrowed in the same proportions. Britain in 1947 spent two-to-one in Canada, compared with Canadian spending in Britain. Now the proportion is only five to four.

In the case of British imports while the U.K. found difficulty in selling much to Canadians in 1947, she is making millions today by her increased sales in Canada. The view taken here that the closer the gap, the better the economy. The more Britain sells to Canada, the more dollars she has to buy Canadian products.

In the case of United States, Canada has "got out and sold things" in the States. This has sent up U.S. sales of Canadian products. One by-product of this has been the relaxing of the austerity rules, and the admittance to Canada of many things on the banned list. As long as Canadian sales continue to be made at high level, there will be a continuous relaxing of austerity, a reduction of articles which cannot be brought into Canada.

Finance Department authorities are "bullish" about 1950 trade. If U.S. prosperity is maintained, Canada will have a good year in 1950. Experts here do not see any recession in sight for Uncle Sam in 1950.

This Sort Of Thing Happens Once Every 4,000,000 Chickens?

KINGSTON, Ont.—Recently it was just another hen on Reginald Kirkham's farm at nearby Eastview. It clucked. It laid eggs.

Then one day it crowed. It stopped laying. It started strutting. It's growing spurs and a comb.

Mr. Kirkham, badly confused, has no explanation, although he's heard this sort of thing happens once every 4,000,000 chickens.

Says Mrs. Kirkham knowingly: "Retarded development".

Eskimo Tailors Need No Measures

WINNIPEG.—Eskimo tailors can give perfect fit with no measurements when they make Arctic clothing, Mrs. D. Wilderspin, of Fort Smith, N.W.T., told a meeting here.

She said they merely look at their customers for a few minutes, emit a few grunts, and come up with the finished garment in a few days.

On The Side —By— E. V. Durling

At the golf course at Cannes, on the French Riviera, beautiful young females act as caddies. Since the glamorous cuties replaced the boys as caddies the number of men carrying their own clubs on the Cannes golf course has sharply decreased. How do you think the "oomph girl" caddy system would go at your golf club? You might think it would be a wonderful idea, but if your wife is a "golf widow" what would she think of it? Incidentally, when the Aga Khan plays at the Cannes golf club he always engages two, red-haired cuties to caddy for him. One to carry the golf bag and the other to hand the clubs to him.

NERVOUS PETS

Have you a pet goldfish? What's its name? A friend of mine has a very intelligent goldfish named Augustus. Anyway, if you have a goldfish you love never take the fish on an ocean trip. It will get seasick. The change from the calm waters of the bowl to the way the motion of the ship will shake said waters up will cause the seasickness. On a recent trip of the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth there was a goldfish which became seasick and the pet is reported to have been a sad sight to look upon. Maybe you have a canary. I can give you some advice about canaries, too. Don't play too much jazz music on your phonograph or tune it in on the radio. If you do, your canary will have a nervous breakdown.

THE WAY TO BEAUTY

Many women who are now not so good looking would be raving beauties if the shape of their noses could be altered. Tallulah Bankhead had her nose lengthened at the suggestion of Augustin St. John, British portrait painter, who said that by so doing her face would have more symmetry.

FOR THE MARRIED

What were you wearing when married? Does your husband remember? Of course, if you had a church wedding that is easy to recall. But if you were married by a justice of the peace or other qualified person, your wedding day attire might be difficult for your husband to recall. However, if he doesn't remember, don't blame him. He was probably just looking into your eyes. There are innumerable versions of that poem dealing with the color of the bride's attire. Here is one a California matron recalls.

Married in white, you've chosen all right.
Married in black, you'll wish yourself back.
Married in blue, you'll always be true.
Married in grey, you'll live far away.
Married in pink, your fortunes will shrink.
Married in yellow, ashamed of the fellow.

"Not so long ago you quoted a bachelorette who said married men should be compelled by law to wear wedding rings or to be tattooed with an "M" on the wrist," writes a young woman. "With that idea I am heartily in accord. This posing of married men as single men so they can go around with unmarried girls and make love to them must be curbed. It is not only a matter of deception, it's downright dangerous for the girl. She runs a chance of some irate wife taking a shot at her. Why don't your experts quote a few helpful hints on how a girl can tell if a man is married?"

YOU PROBABLY HAVE

Do you think you have ever been deceived in the matter of having horse meat served to you? I mean, have you eaten and paid for a meal of horse meat served under another name? If you are a hamburger sandwich enthusiast you probably have. Anyway, I was much interested in noting a statement of a chemical analyst who claimed it is chemically impossible to distinguish horse meat once it is chopped up and cooked. Those seeking evidence against a man serving horse meat as something else must catch him in the act of putting the raw meat on the fire. Or find a quantity of raw horse meat stored about the premises.

HE LIKES SORORITY GIRLS

It was recently stated that the most difficult and destructive hotel guests were females attending sorority conventions. To this hotelman, John Paul Stack, takes exception. Says Mr. Stack: "Sorority conventions are not the worst for a hotel to entertain. Women are fussier, but when they leave there is some furniture left in the room. Not so with football enthusiasts, fraternal order groups and the type of visitor who has come to do the big town sans wife. The last named wants to let his hair down where nobody knows him. If you have a convention of these fellows you have the real hotel wreckers. Don't be too hard on the sorority girls. We like them."

DON'T PLAY POKER WITH WOMEN

Experiments were recently conducted to determine how much telepathy or mind reading figured in poker. It was found that some poker players were more telepathic than others. Also that women poker players were more telepathic than men. Keep that in mind. Don't play poker with a woman. Experts on the subject of telepathy also say an astonishing number of women are mind readers in a small way.

YOUNG POPLARS

By JANE DALE

Yesterday the poplar trees
Waved bare branches in the breeze.
Little buds so shyly peeped
On a world in sunshine steeped.

Then today so fairly green
Like a mantle one is seen,
Tiny leaves aquiver there
Show their beauty, frail and rare.

Oh, the beauty of each tree,
Fairly takes the breath of me.
Care and toil are pushed away
In the wonders of this day.

Colonel Walter Ashfield Hands Over Command Of Regiment To Son

Retiring Colonel

Colonel Walter Ashfield, 53, veteran of two wars, retires from command of the 22nd Field Regiment, R.C.A., Grenfell, Sask.

The retiring commander of the 22nd Field Regiment, R.C.A., Grenfell, Col. Walter Ashfield, was born in Hampstead, a suburb of London, on Nov. 10, 1896. He was the youngest of a family of five, three girls and two boys. His father was a detective-inspector at Scotland Yard. Educated at Beethoven high school, London, Walter Ashfield became a printer's apprentice on a weekly newspaper in London at the age of 15. A year later he migrated to Canada and joined the staff of a weekly newspaper at Brandon, Man.

In Brandon, that same year, the young printer made his first acquaintance with military life. He joined the 99th Manitoba Rangers, N.P.A.M. He donned the king's uniform in September, 1913, and a year later, at the age of 17, he went on active service. The curtain had gone up on the First World War.

In April, 1916, Private Ashfield went overseas with the 79th Battalion and in June he was wearing the insignia of the 86th Nova Scotia Highlanders commanded by the late Col. J. L. Ralston, who was to become Canada's wartime minister of national defence.

Col. Ashfield remembers his old commander with affection. He recalls the day Col. Ralston went out to search for a missing officer, Lt. Cyril Evans of Winnipeg, and brought him back to the unit. For rescuing the wounded officer, Col. Ralston was recommended for the Victoria Cross. The recommendation went through brigade and division and was turned down by the corps commander who said curtly that a commander should not jeopardize his command by leaving it.

One of Col. Ashfield's cherished possessions is a personal letter from Col. Ralston written in the field and addressed to Pte. W. Ashfield who was in hospital recovering from wounds received at Oppy Woods in July, 1918.

The letter began: "My dear Ashfield, we were all very sorry to hear

GRENFELL, Sask.—A veteran of two world wars retired from command of his regiment in Grenfell recently and a younger soldier, his son, became the unit's new O.C.

At a handing over ceremony in the grounds of the Grenfell Armory, Col. Walter Ashfield, 53, transferred command of the 22nd Field Regiment, R.C.A., to his son, Lt.-Col. C. A. Ashfield, 29, and completed a military career that has spanned 35 years of active and reserve service with the Canadian Army.

It was perhaps the first time in Canadian military history that the command of an army unit passed from father to son in direct succession.

Present to watch the colonel's leave taking of his regiment were Brig. H. E. Murray, D.S.O., E.D., commander of the 6th Canadian Armored Division, Regina, and Maj. R. M. Campbell, representing the Saskatchewan area command.

of your bad luck and we sincerely hope that your chest will come around again all right.

"The boys are enjoying a swim this morning and our surroundings are very pleasant indeed."

The letter concluded with: "Let me know if there is anything I can do for you, and I will try."

Discharged from the army in January, 1919, Col. Ashfield went back to his job on the weekly newspaper in Brandon. In 1921 he became owner, publisher and editor of the Grenfell Sun.

In Grenfell, he assisted a local dentist, Dr. C. D. Bricker, to form an infantry company. Col. Ashfield, then holding the rank of major, took command of this company in 1934. It was known then as "D" Company, Assiniboia Regiment. In 1937 it was converted to an artillery unit and became the 65 Field Battery of the 22nd Field Brigade.

With the outbreak of World War Two, Col. Ashfield mobilized the 65 battery as the 65 Anti-Tank Battery but because of age regulations he was not permitted to take it overseas. During the war he ran an artillery training school for officers and N.C.O.'s. He later became brigade major of the 40th Reserve Brigade Group under Col. H. J. Quinn. During the demobilization period he was second in command to Col. H. E. Murray, now Brig. Murray, at No. 12 District Depot, Regina.

Col. Ashfield left active service in May, 1946, and took over command of the 22nd Field Regiment in Grenfell in June with the rank of Lieutenant-colonel.

His wife, the former Nettie Margaret Brown of Wheatland, near Brandon, died last year. Col. Ashfield has five children, two daughters and three sons: Mrs. David Mallough, Saskatoon; Mrs. Norman Busse, Aberdeen, S. Dak.; Walter, 15, with the army cadets in Grenfell; Joe, 13, and Clifford, 29, who succeeded him as commanding officer of the 22nd Field Regiment.

New Colonel

Lt.-Col. C. A. Ashfield, 29, new commanding officer of the 22nd Field Regiment at Grenfell, Sask.

The new commanding officer of the 22nd Field Regiment at Grenfell, Lt.-Col. C. A. Ashfield, 29, comes to his new command post with a background of military service that began when he was 11 and includes a five-year post-graduate course in the hard school of war.

Two promotions came to Lt.-Col. Ashfield in Grenfell; he succeeded to the command of his father's regiment and moved up from major to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Born at Brandon, Man., and schooled at Grenfell, he attended his first army camp at Dundurn when he was 11. He made the rank of sergeant in artillery and infantry reserve units and was commissioned a lieutenant in 1937.

He resigned his commission to go overseas as a gunner with the 71st Battery of Brandon in 1939. He was made a sergeant in 1940 and after taking an officer's training course, he was commissioned in England with the rank of lieutenant.

Col. Ashfield served with three different field regiments overseas and did a tour of staff duty. He was with the 11th Field Regiment in Italy and No. 2 Public Relations Group in Italy. Following a period in England for flying training, he returned to the continent in the spring of 1945 to join the 665 A.O.P. Squadron.

Following his discharge he took over command of the 65 Battery at Grenfell in June, 1946, and in June, 1950, he became the regiment's C.O.

A printer, like his father, Col. Ashfield has charge of the mechanical department of the Grenfell Sun.

He married an English girl in April, 1942, and they have two boys, Clifford John, six, and Nicholas Walter, two. Mrs. Ashfield comes from a military family and during the war she was trained as an army school teacher to instruct children of British soldiers serving in outposts of the Empire.

THE MARCH PAST—Col. Walter Ashfield takes the salute for the last time as his regiment wheels past the reviewing stand. The occasion marked the colonel's retirement as commander and his son's succession to the post.

Smile of the Week—

A sailor was in court for fighting. "Your honor," he told the judge, "I was in a telephone booth talking to my girl and a guy wants to use the phone. So he opens the door, grabs me and tosses me out of the booth."

"And that made you angry?" asked the judge.

"Well, yes," replied the sailor, "but I didn't get really mad until he grabbed my girl and threw her out too."

DOMINION DAY TITLE STANDS

OTTAWA.—Dominion Day (July 1) is still Dominion Day. In a free vote of the Commons on a private member's bill to substitute the title "Canada Day" for the familiar one of "Dominion Day", the House by a vote of 73 to 39, decided to retain the familiar name for the national holiday.

Necessity never made a good bargain.

The Bride! Public Spender Number One

The bride is still the nation's Number One spender, a recent survey shows, with this year's average expenditure per bride estimated at just under $5,000; if she has a formal wedding and all the trimmings.

Papa's cheque book should be equal to the following expenditures, it was stated at a recent bridal clinic:

Wedding dress and veil	$100.00
1 Going-away Suit	70.00
3 Day Dresses	90.00
1 Trouseau Coat	86.50
2 Trouseau Hats	30.00
3 Pairs Shoes	45.00
2 Trouseau Handbags	25.00
3 Pairs Gloves	15.00
6 Pairs Hosiery	12.00
Costume Jewelry	20.00
Trouseau Luggage	50.00
Trouseau Lingerie	50.00

This makes a grand total of $593.50 for the trousseau, but that's just the beginning. If the bride is moving into her own home, she may put the bite on dad for some $2,000 worth of furniture, silver and linens. The wedding itself, including flowers, music, food and champagne for 100 guests, will set him back another $1,000 at the very least. (This again refers to a formal wedding and reception.)

In addition the average bride receives from 50 to 100 gifts, ranging in price from $10 to $25. This represents around $1,300 worth of merchandise.

Thus the bride of 1950 is a potential customer for $4,893.50 worth of goods, and thus should be the most valued customer in the country.—Ottawa Journal.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

PROGRESS

All that is human must retrograde if it do not advance.—Gibbon.

Intellectually, as well as politically, the direction of all true progress is toward greater freedom, and along an endless succession of ideas.

Literary commercialism is lowering the intellectual standard to accommodate the purse and to meet a frivolous demand for amusement instead of for improvement. Incorrect views lower the standard of truth.—Mary Baker Eddy.

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

All growth that is not toward God is growing to decay.—George MacDonald.

Let us labor for that larger comprehension of truth, and that more thorough repudiation of error, which shall make the history of mankind a series of ascending developments.—Horse Mann.

STATION Y-O-U

In this great day of radio, With words and music it abounds; We know the air is full of sounds, With words and music abounds; Yet not one bit of it we hear Without a speaker for the ear.

And all of us are stations, too, Broadcasting things we think and do;

Our thoughts of hate, of doubt, of fear, Of love and courage, faith and cheer, The good or bad, the weak or strong, Our thoughts go forth both right and wrong.

If someone could (and should) invent Receivers, catching thoughts as sent,

Would you be satisfied, be proud To have them magnified out loud? What would you think, what would you do,

If people could tune in on you?

Atom May Provide Food In 70 Years

LONDON.—Only a new source of energy, such as atomic power, could solve the world's long-term food problem, a British agricultural scientist said recently.

Farmers might keep up or catch up with world food demands during the next 70 years, but after that he could "see no possibility of going on," Sir James Scott Watson, chief scientific and agricultural adviser to the ministry of agriculture, told a women's institute meeting in London. There might be family limitation. Or, if atomic energy could be harnessed, the power producers would be sufficient to produce basic food needs in the form of synthetics—sugar, and protein, for example.

These would be a poor substitute for cheese and steak, "but something might be done to improve the taste," he said.

The present population rate of increase implied that the world's population would double itself at intervals of about 70 years.

"I think it should be within the capacity of agriculture to give adequate standards of living to the people in the world in 70 years. What is going to happen after that? I can see no possibility of going on at the same rate. Your guess is as good as mine."

Vegetarian Diet

MELBOURNE, Australia.—If animals could live on a vegetarian diet, so could he, decided Melbourne's 28-year-old Bert Dean.

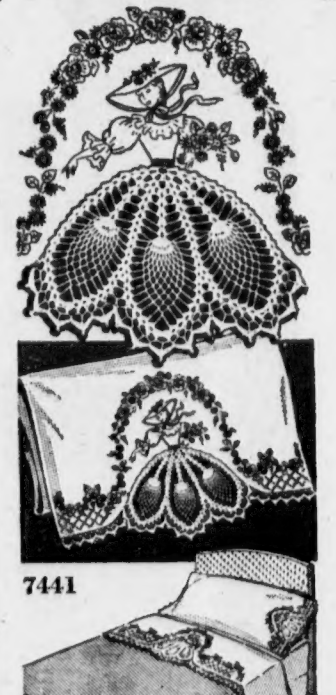

This is what Dean thinks is a good "breakfast".

Half a plate of grass One raw egg (eaten with the shell, of course)

Three rosebuds Chopped seaweed A pint of fresh sea water

Dean said he really enjoyed all this, but admitted he acquired the taste when he went vegetarian five years ago. During the five years, he said he never had a cold or any illness, never felt tired and never lost weight.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Spring Song :: Picked A Divorce Court To Announce A Blessed Event.

By Jeanne O. Wellenkamp

JANE RANDALL sat in the crowded courtroom and tried to think of a word to describe the oppressive, musty odor. "Failure," she decided. "This room smells of failure . . . People who started out with great dreams and lost the way . . ."

Weak spring sunlight lit the judge's desk where he idly fingered documents and listened to the testimony of a weeping woman.

Her eyes, searching for something more cheerful, caught those of a young man nearby. A moment later he took a seat beside Jane.

"Hello," he whispered tentatively. "Not a very nice day."

A tree outside the courtroom brushed its bare branch against the dingy window, its buds tight and shrunken.

"Nice enough," said Jane.

"I guess I know what you mean," he agreed. "It's nice enough for this place. That's why I noticed your red coat. Just what the room needs—a little color."

Jane pulled her coat about her, as if to hide in its folds. "No personal remarks," she seemed to say.

The young man did not appear to notice. "As a matter of fact," he continued, "you're the only attractive thing here. I said to myself just now, 'What is a beautiful girl like that doing in a divorce court; her husband must be a dope.'"

"I wouldn't say that," Jane said. "He has a lot of good qualities; unfortunately, he isn't trustworthy."

"That's a rather serious accusation, ma'am."

"You're perfectly right; it is. It doesn't make any difference how good-looking, or smart, or hard-working a man is; if his wife can't trust him, it's no go."

"Good-looking, smart, hard-working," he repeated. "H-m-m. Sure you're not letting a prize package get away? Probably there's a line of girls waiting to snatch him."

"They're welcome. He's probably got one picked out."

"When he has you?" He slanted his eyes at her. "Lady, he should have his head examined."

"I've often thought so, myself," Jane said bitterly. Then she added, "why are you here?"

"Why am I here?" he repeated. "I wake up nights and wonder about that. One minute I had everything, a dream girl for a wife, a lovely little home, and swell prospects in my job. Now the house is empty."

"What happened?" asked Jane.

The young man moved closer. "She had too much imagination and not enough humor."

"Go on."

"I was too ambitious. I wanted to give her everything. She was so sweet and contented about things . . . she'd take a remnant and sew the best looking clothes. Say, she'd stand out in a crowd anywhere. But me, I wanted her to have minks, I guess. I took to staying out late. She only half-way believed me when I said I was working. Then somebody saw me at a bar with a gal. Of course she heard about it. With that imagination of hers, she didn't wait to hear my side. She just up and left."

"And what would you have told her?"

"The truth. I was buying a coke for the boss's daughter. But she wouldn't have believed me."

"It is an old story," said Jane.

"Yep," agreed the young man. "But it happens to be a fact."

The testimony before the judge was concluded. The bailiff called the next case.

"Randall versus Randall."

Jane stepped forward. "I am going to have my lawyer ask the court to dismiss the case, your honor," she said.

The judge peered down severely. "That's the trouble with young folks. No sense of responsibility. You change your minds and clutter the docket. There are costs involved."

"I'll pay those, your honor," said the young man.

"Who're you?"

"I'm the defendant."

Jane said, "So I've been unfair and suspicious? Let's face it. There are times in a woman's life that she's inclined to get queer ideas. It seems to me if men had a little more imagination they'd be able to figure it out."

Suddenly light dawned for Joe. He began to laugh. "And I certainly have to hand it to your sense of humor, too. 'Who but my Janey would pick a divorce court to announce a blessed event!'"

Jane laughed with him. They stepped outside, and the spring sunshine filled the air with glory.

Workmen Given New Cars Yearly

VANCOUVER.—A Vancouver employer has hit on a unique way to get more work out of his employees—and they love him for it.

L. D. Dueck, president of an automobile firm, gives a new car each year to his 100 senior employees. Junior employees — those who have worked less than a year for the firm — get use of a new car during their vacation.

Officials say there are no restrictions on who gets the car. They go to metal men and mechanics as well as department heads and foremen.

The program means a continual, heavy capital investment," says Mr. Dueck, "but we have found through experience that the investment is fully returned in first-class workmanship, greater plant efficiency and productivity."

Mr. Dueck started his scheme in 1942. He gave every employee a car during vacations. This worked out so well that in 1945 he decided to give senior employees the cars on a year-round basis.

The employees turn the cars in each year and receive a new one, equipped with license and heater. There are no charges and no "ifs".

Predicts Canada Will Market All 1950 Wheat Crop

EDMONTON. — C. W. Lockard, of Hamilton, president of International Harvester of Canada limited, predicted that Canada is certain to have a market for all of her 1950 wheat crop.

"Reports are that severe drought has practically wiped out the wheat crop in the former dust bowl of the central, southwest United States," he said. "Canadian surplus wheat will be needed right here on the continent."

Mr. Lockard also said Quebec and the Maritimes were "at last catching up on the west in farm mechanization."

It happened to Fred Smith, middle-aged resident of this city.

He was helping B.C. Power Commission workmen to stretch a roll of cable along the ground preparatory to hoisting it. No one knows what happened, but somehow 60,000 volts flowed in his hand and out his shoulder.

After the incident 45 perforations were found in his shoulder and he had three broken ribs.

Mrs. D. K. Edmundson Attends Cancer Course

Mrs. D. K. Edmundson of Hesketh, a member of Pope Lease W. I., returned from Banff recently where she had attended a Cancer Institute organized by the Alberta Women's Institute in cooperation with the Alberta Division of the Canadian Cancer Society, at Banff School of Fine Arts, with the theme of 'Blueprint for Action.' The three-day Institute was designed to create an informed group of women in all parts of the province, versed in all aspects of the coordinated cancer control program. One member from each Institute branch in the southern part of the province was selected to attend.

During their three-day course the students heard lectures from outstanding specialists in the cancer field, in the various agencies engaged in the all-out fight against cancer. Demonstrations of scientific equipment used in the modern detection and treatment of cancer were also given to the 160 and more Women's Institute members.

Mrs. Edmundson has been appointed representative of the Cancer Information service in this locality, and applications for cancer literature and other information, as well as inquiries as to the operation of the Canadian Cancer Society's far-reaching welfare program, may be directed to her.
